DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 12-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Akitaya et al (USP. 6,820,018.

Regarding claim 12, Akitaya disclose in Fig. 1 and 8-9 a small thin disc configured and sized for insertion in a battery cavity between a battery operated load device and a battery powering said load device, the disc having a motion detector (28) and an automatic shut off timing device (56) whose action is inhibited by the motion detector (Abstract) (Col. 1, Line 53-56).

Regarding claim 13, Akitaya disclose in Fig. 8 and 9 that the automatic shut off timing device includes an electronic switch (SW3) operable between a conductive and a non-conductive state to selectively connect the battery to the load device (Col. 19, Line 42); a timer (57) operable to initiate a timing interval in response to motion sensed by the motion detector (Col. 19, Line 58); and a control circuit (54) responsive to signals from the timer to operate the electronic switch to connect the battery to the load device only during the timing interval (Col. 21, Line 45-50).

Art Unit: 2821

Regarding claim 14, Akitaya disclose in Fig. 8 and 9 that the control circuit is operative to gradually vary the conductive state of the electronic switch between a fully conductive state and a fully non-conductive state so that current flow from the battery to the load device does not change abruptly when the load device is turned on and off (Col. 8, Line 44).

Regarding claim 15, Akitaya disclose a self-contained electrical circuit for insertion in series with a battery power source for a battery powered load device in Fig. 1 and 8-9 including a timer (57) that automatically times out thereby shutting off the battery power to the load device at a predetermined time after the load device is turned on (Abstract) (Col. 1, Line 53-56).

Regarding claim 16, Akitaya disclose in Fig. 1 and 8 that a motion detector (28) operative to reset the timer so that the battery powered device continues to operate as long as there is some motion during the timing period before shut-off (Col. 20, Line 15-27).
